CRIME IN SOVIET RUSSIA

In Moscow the other day, they shot 66 "enemies" of the Soviet regime for the slaying of one prominent Red official, Kiroff.

The alleged plotters were brought to trial, executed and buried within 48 hours of Kiroff's death. That is fast work, even for Soviet Russia.

Dispatches tell us their property was confiscated. We thought that property had been abolished in the Communist Russian state. It seems we were wrong.

By subscribing to capital punishment, the Soviet leaders subscribe to the old scriptural law—an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, a life for a life.

Evidently they thought Kiroff's life was worth the lives of 66 plotters.
What a setback for the theory that all men are created equal.—New

CHARLES BOUTILLIER PASSES SUDDENLY

Word of the very sudden passing of Charles Boutillier on Monday morning came as a distinct shock to the whole district.

Mr. Boutillier put in his regular shift as a lampman at the Greenhill mine on Friday, and that night and the greater part of Saturday was to be seen around town as usual, apparently enjoying good health. Late Saturday night, however, he was taken by a stroke, from which he failed to rally, and passed on about 9:45 on Monday morning, the closing day of the old year.

He leaves, besides a sorrowing wife, a large family of sons and daughters, some grown up and married, while others are still in their teens and school age. There are also several grandchildren. Mrs. Jack Gamache, of Coleman; Mrs. John Shafer and Mrs. Badot, of Blairmore, are daughters. There are three other married daughters, two in Bellevue and one residing near New York.

Harvey Boutillier, Cowley district farmer, is a brother.

Mr. Boutillier was one of the oldest old-timers in this district, coming to Alberta some fifty-one years ago, when only seventeen years of age.

Funeral took place this forenoon, the remains being laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery, following service conducted at St. Anne's church by Rev. Father Harrington.

PROFESSOR JOURNALISM

Vancouver is host today to members of the British Columbia and Yukon Press Association.

It is a pleasure to make them welcome, for these men are outstanding individuals in a journalistic group that sheds lustre on the whole profession of journalism.

The editor of a metropolitan newspaper, immersed in moving world events, sometimes loses touch with the realities and verities of life.

But the editor of a country weekly is rooted pleasantly and usefully in the very soil of his community. He not only gets to know events, but to know men.

His is a personal journalism. His is a high and personal service. His is a fine duty of community leadership.

Thus the weekly newspapers and weekly newspaper editors are one of the most influential and benign forces in the life of this continent.

This convention in Vancouver is the more notable in that British Columbia weeklies maintain a standard of journalistic efficiency that is unusually high.

We are proud of our provincial papers. We are proud of the men who operate them.

And we are glad to have them here.
—The Vancouver Sun.

The Intercolonial Coal Company of Westville, Nova Scotia, gave 500 miners a Christmas gift of $10 each.

Recently, when the Duke of Kent and the Princess Marina of Greece were wedded, a New Glasgow, N.S., business man, who is a native of Greece, celebrated the event by treating 1600 children with cones of ice cream.

The following were winners in the Christmas draw conducted by the Mine Workers' Union at Bellevue: first prize, Miss Evelyn Price; second, Ben Mills; third, Wm. Brown; fourth, S. Berry; fifth, A. Hallworth; sixth, G. A. Vissac; seventh, C. Ritchie; eighth, Mrs. Peters; ninth, Wm.
Malzanaki; tenth, W. Gregory; eleventh, a Blairmore man name unknown; twelfth, R. Blake. The Mine Workers' officials are quite satisfied with results and thank all who assisted them.

TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS OF ALBERTA

Liberal Essay Contest Open to the Youth of Alberta

During this year the Alberta Liberal Party has held a number of Economic Conferences throughout Alberta for the purpose of obtaining first hand advice from all interests and industries in the Province as to what a Liberal Government can do to assist those engaged in the various lines of endeavor. These conferences have proven a great success. The Liberals now know the people's problems and the manner in which many of them can be remedied.

It is the determination of Alberta Liberals that the Youth of Alberta—girls and boys alike—shall be the first consideration of "A new start for Alberta" under a new Liberal government.

Therefore an invitation is extended to all girls and boys born in the twentieth century and now residing in Alberta to write an Essay on the following question:

"What the Government of Alberta can do, after the next election, to assist the youth of Alberta."

As an encouragement to the girls and boys to commence the fight for "the new start for Alberta youth," prizes of $10.00, $9.00, $8.00, $7.00, $6.00, $5.00 and $4.00 for the seven best essays in order of merit will be given and as many as possible of the prize-winning essays will be published in the provincial newspapers.

The essays will be judged for their information, logic and presentation by a committee to be chosen by the editors of the Alberta Daily Newspaper.

RULES: 1. Essays must not be less than 700 words and must not exceed 1,000 words.

2. Contributors must establish the fact that they have no connection with professional journalism.

3. All manuscripts must be typed or legibly written on one side of the paper.

4. Contributors will submit a statement showing date of birth, to have been within the twentieth century, and present post office address.

5. All manuscripts must be handed by the last of April, 1935.

These essays will be taken to represent the demands of the youth of Alberta.

When we die, we can take nothing away! While we live, what can we give to Alberta youth? The golden thread of life and health must always remain sovereign over the golden coin.

The Liberal Party when elected will do everything possible to throw open the doors of opportunity to the youth of Alberta, in order that they may be able to play their full part in the development of our province.

DIDN'T HAPPEN HERE,
BUT IT'S WORTH TRYING

In a rural district of Scotland, one of the young men, though uneducated, had a powerful gift for words and was in demand at Burns' dinners and even as a preacher. It was a poor district, but despite the evidences of want, the one rich man of the neighborhood did nothing to relieve poverty or help the church. Finally he became very ill and remorseful, and on his death bed called in the young gift to comfort him. "Div's think," he asked "if I gave all my goods to the church, would it recommend me to my Maker?" The young man sat torn between consideration for the relatives and relief for the church. At last he gave answer: "Well, I canna promise, but it wad be a most interesting experiment."

District News From Our Own Correspondents

COWLEY HAPPENINGS

New Year's Day ushered in Old King Winter in regal style, with a howling cold blizzard, or frozen chinook, which hurled the loose snow thirty feet in the air and made it unsafe for humans to be away from their residences. After a hard fight, preceded by a government plow, the Greyhound bus reached here at midnight New Year's eve, some of the tired passengers just catching the passenger train to continue their trip west, others seeking beds in the hotel.

All drivers had to keep awake all night to keep their engines warm, and throughout New Year's Day the storm howled, except for a short lull in the evening, which encouraged the plow to try to open the road. But soon the storm fell again, and work had to be abandoned. During the lull, a fleet of delayed passenger cars arrived from the west, having detoured through the fields and along railway right-of-way to make the open road east, which they did with much thankfulness. Storms make strange breadfellow, as they say, when the rival bakery vans from Bellevue and Pincher Creek were stuck in the same drift. Wednesday morning ushered in an east storm with more snow, and though the plow has made an attempt to open the road, traffic is still tied up. (Wednesday afternoon).

Miss Jessie Fraser, who is teaching the Tanner school, spent the holiday season with her parents at Pincher Creek.

Miss Phyllis Porter and Miss Winnifred Porter, teachers of the Gadshill and Olin Creek schools, spent the holidays at their home here.

Miss Nellie Kropinak, teacher of the Tennyson school, spent Christmas holidays at her home at Willow Valley.

Miss Jennie Heibin, teacher of the Todd Creek school, spent the Christmas holidays at her home in Coleman.

Miss Isabel Porter is visiting friends in Hillcrest.

Jack Cowin is in Calgary, where he will spend a two weeks holiday.

Miss Nellie McWilliams has returned to take up her duties as principal of the Cowley school, after spending the holiday season at her home north of Lundbreck.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Easterbrook and Audrey, of Calgary, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Cowin.

Miss Jean Morrison has returned from Calgary, where she spent the season's holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Tustian have returned from Calgary, where they have been holidaying for the past week.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Ralph Draper, who is attending the Calgary normal school, spent the Christmas holidays at home here.

Miss B. C. Sellon was a Calgary visitor last week.

Gwyn Richards returned to Edmonton on Tuesday, to resume his studies at the University.

John Nykyfor has been a patient in the local hospital.

The Hillcrest high school party, held last Friday night, was a great success. Jack Woods, in a brief speech, presented the two high school teachers, Mr. W. Brushett and Miss B.
C. Sellon, with gifts from the students.

A special service was held in the United church on Sunday evening.
The string quartette supplied the music. Miss Audrey Martin rendered a vocal solo, and Rev. M. Wood delivered a sermonette.

Miss Evelyn Stenhouse and Mr.
Adam Pollock were united in marriage at the manse on Monday evening, Rev. J. Wood officiating. The young couple will take up residence in Hillcrest.

Cliff Richards, of Mountain Park, returned to his home on Saturday night for the holidays.

Little Journeys In Science

LIGHT WAVES

(By Gordon H. Guest, M.A.)

Science believes that light is due to a succession of wave-pulses produced in the ether by vibrating electrons, which are found in all atoms. Every solid body, if its temperature is above absolute zero (-273 deg. C.) gives off waves of different lengths.

Bodies at low temperatures give off long waves, which are called heat-waves. These waves produce the sensation of warmth, but cannot be seen. As the temperature rises the waves become shorter and shorter. As a general rule, a body does not glow if its temperature is below 525 deg. C. When a solid such as iron or platinum is heated to 525 deg. C., it becomes faintly red. This means that it is giving off waves which are long enough to be detected by the human eye. As the temperature of a body rises, it gives off light-waves of shorter and shorter length, along with longer heat-waves. At 800 deg. C. the body changes to cherry red, at 1300 deg. it is white-hot, while at 1400 deg. C. or above it is blue-white in appearance. Beyond this region the waves are invisible and are known as ultra-violet rays. These rays are very useful in the treatment of certain diseases. They penetrate clear fused quartz, which can now be produced commercially, but they are stopped by ordinary window-glass. The infrared rays are also invisible, but their waves are of greater length than those of visible light. X-rays, as well as the rays from radium, have wave-lengths shorter than the ultra-violet. The rays used in wireless telegraphy, known as Hertzian electric waves, are much longer than the other rays.

Some bodies emit light much below 525 C. that is, below the temperature of incandescence. These are known as luminescent and certain organisms such as the firefly and the glow-worm belong to this class of bodies.

When light is produced in a chemical change at a low temperature we have a phenomenon known as chemiluminescence. Changes of this kind are due to the union of a substance with oxygen, and may therefore be also called oxy-luminescence. The glowing of phosphorus is an excellent example of chemiluminescence, for it is slow oxidation.

Film Director Plans Movie Of "Valley Of 10,000 Smokes"

The mysterious "Valley of 10,000 smokes," in the Aleutian Islands, where volcanoes blow their hot breath against Arctic winds, will be the object of an ambitious motion picture expedition, Ewing Scott, Hollywood film director, said. "Our expedition will pioneer the use of modern photographic equipment operated by trained specialists. We have four specially designed aeroplanes at our disposal, and hope to photograph scenes never before viewed by man."

More Home Produced

Alberta bees worked overtime during the past year, it is indicated in figures of the Alberta agricultural department. In 1934, 1,264,000 pounds of honey were produced, which at 10 cents per pound brought $126,400 to apiculturists. Last year's production was 1,000,000 pounds valued at nine cents per pound.

Arms and Ammunition Industry

United States Government Opposed To Governmental Ownership

The United States war department opposed governmental ownership of the arms and ammunition industry in a prepared statement submitted to the senate munitions committee, several of whose members have proposed such a course.

"Such a policy would fall in war, and therefore does not appear logical in peace," the department said, asserting nevertheless it "does not oppose in any way a programme of licensing the munitions industry."

Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the new war industries board, told the house foreign affairs committee of the difficulty and importance of obtaining tin in time of war, and recommended that the government buy thousands of tons and store it away, "just as it would invest in a battle-ship."

It was suggested the United States accept tin in payment on war debts, and Baruch agreed.

Queer Home-Made Clock

Has Celebrated Twentieth Birthday And Keeps Good Time

What must be the most elaborate home-made clock in the world has just celebrated its 20th "birthday" in the home of G. W. Barltrop of Newtown, New Zealand.

He completed it after 30 years' work and set it going in 1914. It has kept accurate time ever since. He made it out of sort of odds and ends; bits of old clocks, old tins, bicycle bells, fishing line, an empty can of floor polish filled with lead (as a pendulum bob), strands of wire and scraps of junk.

It tells the minutes, hours, days of the month, state of the moon and the corresponding times of all the chief cities in the world. Mr. Barltrop had never made a clock before—and has never made one since.

A Worth-While Request

Trust Fund Brings Christmas Cheer To Aged Peoples' Homes

"I, being mindful that while there are many to remember the child on Christmas Day, there are few who think of the aged and forgotten . . ."

Such words were written into her will, before her death 2 1/2 years ago, by Mrs. Caroline McGilvra Burke, pioneer Seattle resident. She provided that $25,000 be put into a Christmas trust fund for residents of the Kenney home for old folks.

In 1934 the terms of the will were carried out for the first time. The 56 residents of the home celebrated at a dinner. Each received a cheque for $43.

Taking Lessons In Seeing

Women Blind For Years Have Mistaken Ideas About Things

After years of blindness two women have left London eye hospitals, seeing through the eyes of other women—thanks to operations by a brilliant Welsh surgeon. They found that they had to "learn to see". They helped each other. Now they have parted.

One, Mrs. Daphne Muir, wife of Dr. Raydon Muir of Cape Town, has gone to the United States. The other is left in her English home. They were operated on by Dr. Tudor Thomas of Cardiff, Mrs. Muir had not seen for ten years; her fellow-sufferer for 30 years.

When a woman has not seen since she was a child she discovers what mistakes ideas blind people have about the world around them. Her first lessons in seeing take the form of drawings on a blackboard; shoes and houses, dogs and cats, flowers and faces are drawn for her. She learns to know what they are.

Next she is asked to fill the details to put funnel on to a ship, flowers on stems. Then she learns to distinguish the faces of those who come to see her and to see things in focus as a whole.

A man can walk a mile without seeing more than a couple of feet.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
ENLARGEMENTS AS GIFTS

Enlargements make just about perfect gifts for any occasion. Here are two different enlargements from the same snapshot negative; one for Dad's desk at the office and the other for the living room out at Grandma's.

Everything considered, snapshots are a lucky lot. As we have seen, they have the edge on ordinary mortals in the matter of really personal, meaningful Christmas cards. And snapshots are lucky in that they have the means of creating gifts of exceptional charm and value for any occasion.

These particular "means" are the snapshot negatives from which beautiful enlargements can be made. If you haven't yet experimented with enlargements, now's the time. If you have a darkroom of your own, where you develop and print your own pictures, one of the simple modern enlargers will make it a vastly more fascinating place. But you get practically the same pleasure—and uniformly excellent work-out—of enlargements made from your films by any regular photo-finisher.

In enlarging a picture you get not only a bigger, more realistic image, but the opportunity to select the best part of any negative for magnification. Suppose you have a good negative of the youngsters at play in the sandbox—a picture which their grandparents would be delighted to have enlarged, as a gift. But suppose there's something incongruous—a wash on the line, a lawn mower or anything else that doesn't add a thing to the charm of the view—to the right or left of the children. With an enlarger, that distracting, unnecessary feature can be completely eliminated.

There's nothing complicated or difficult about enlarging. It's exactly like a "magic lantern" or stereopticon. The only difference is that you use a negative film instead of a lantern slide and project the image on light-sensitive paper instead of a silver screen. By making out the undesired parts of the negative you keep them from reaching the paper. Any photo shop will explain this and other details more fully for you.

Enlargements may be of almost any size. Any good negative, no matter how small may be "blown up" to make a picture five or six times the size of the original. A slide 2 1/2 x 3 1/2 inch film will easily give you a sparkling 8 x 10 inch enlargement. But that is by no means the limit. Enlargements have been made to cover an entire wall of a room. But such jobs are not recommended for folks such as ourselves. (Not unless you're wealthy!)

A word about subjects for enlargements—particularly if they're to be used as gifts. Choose pictures that will mean something to the recipients. A shot of Fido trying to climb a tree after Cleo, the cat, will be vastly appreciated by big brother or sister away at college, but it won't mean very much to Aunt Cynthia who doesn't care for either dogs or cats.

Some of the best enlargements we've seen have been landscapes—or seascapes. Mountains usually make good pictures. But if they're to be given as remembrances, choose landscapes familiar to those who will get the pictures.

PETER'S CONVERSION AND CALL

Golden text: And Jesus said unto them, Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men. Matt. 4:19.

Lesson: John 1:29-42; Mark 1:14-39.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 6:1-8.

Explanations And Comments

Peter's First Meeting With Jesus. John 1:40-42. One of the two who had followed Jesus to his abode was Andrew, "Simon Peter's brother,"—thus he is known even from the beginning of the Gospel record. For Peter was the more forceful of the two brothers. It often happens that the brother or sister of one who has an aggressive nature is identified by others by the latter's name, to his or her annoyance. Andrew, however, was a quiet, unassuming man, who probably greatly admired his brother's energy and quickness, and was willing to let Andrew take the lead. As far as that brother was concerned.

To Peter, his brother, Andrew went at once with the thrilling message, "We have found the Messiah!"—Messiah, as you well know, is the Hebrew word for Christ, the Greek, which means "The Anointed One." Dr. McFarland pertinently observes that if Andrew had understood a little more deeply he would have said, "The Messiah has found us!"

And Andrew brought Peter to Jesus. His success in bringing Peter is thrice recorded in this Gospel, here, in 6:8 and in 12:22.

"There were many things that Andrew could have done with his great discovery. He could have taken it out in dressing in disputing, in reading the old Testament, in revisiting the Baptist, in deciding to tell somebody about the coming of business and personal interest had been settled; but the very first thing that he did was to find his own brother Simon." (A. T. Robertson.)

Jesus looked upon Peter as he came to him and said, "Thou art Simon, the son of John; thou shalt be called Cephas." Cephas, the Aramaic name, and Peter, the Greek name, mean a stone, a detached piece of rock. Jesus knew that Peter then was too impulsive to be reliable, but he also knew that Peter was the making of the rock on which he would some day build his church, Mt. 16:13-19, and had the gift of supreme leadership.

Magistrate Asked For Suspect's Fingerprints And Guard Sent

A carefully wrapped parcel containing eight fingers and two thumbs neatly packed and labelled, reached a surprised magistrate at Brugge, Belgium.

It had been sent in response to a request directed to a communal magistrate at Vilvoorde to send the fingerprints of a person who had committed suicide by drowning.

The guard, unfamiliar with modern identification methods, resorted to amputation for the necessary information.

Prince Edward Island is the only province in Canada showing a reduced value in field crops for 1934 compared with 1933. The estimated value for 1934 is $8,000,000 dollars, and $8,451,000 dollars in 1933.

Serum Declared Success

Announcement By Denver Tuberculosis Experts To Be Made

The announcement of the success of a tuberculosis preventive, apparently as simple to administer as small-pox vaccine, is expected to be made soon by Denver tuberculosis experts.

Governor E. C. Johnson disclosed that "human guinea pig" experiments with Colorado convicts, during which the tuberculosis serum was tested, seemingly are a success.

In medical circles there were reports the formal announcement of the results will be made public soon. Doctors of the National Jewish hospital at Denver, who developed the serum during experiments which took 18 years, adhered to their policy of silence, but they indicated to officials at the Colorado prison, where tests were made, that they have no doubt of the success of the preventive.

Two convicts, who gambled their lives in the tests against a chance at freedom, probably will be granted parole early in January, Governor Johnson said.

These men, Carl Erickson and Mike Schmidt, were first given "shots" of the serum last April. Then millions of tuberculosis bacilli were injected in their blood.

Frisson officials said both men are in good health and that they had shown no signs of contracting the disease.

Denver tuberculosis experts said that the injections of the bacilli were sufficient to "impair the health of any ordinary person" and that if the tests had failed, the two convicts would have been considered a success.

Governor Johnson said that in his agreement with the convicts who volunteered for the tests, it was provided the men should gain their freedom when the physicians had completed their experiments.

Canadian Wheat Pools

Able To Present Statement Showing Substantial Progress

At its recent annual meeting held in Regina the Saskatchewan Wheat pool was able to present a statement showing substantial progress, notwithstanding poor crops. In a considerable area of that province, Total grain handled by the Pool during the year was slightly over 60,000,000 bushels and working capital increased from $3,580,554 in the previous year to $6,017,531.

In 1929 the Wheat Pools of the western provinces paid their members some $2,000,000 more than the grain brought when finally sold. Financing under the conditions arising from this over payment, which were due to the sudden drop in grain prices in the 1929 crop year, was made possible by support extended by the provincial governments. The pools are now repaying the government advances, with the exception of approximately $1,500,000 which was written off by the government of Manitoba. The first payment of principal came due in the fall of 1933 and payment of principal and interest was made by the three pool organizations. Principal and interest have again been paid in 1934, the amount so paid by the various pools being: Manitoba, $233,741; Saskatchewan, $1,132,304; Alberta, $453,425; total, $1,619,470.

As Good As Money

Circus Manager Had To Take Cash For Tickets

The manager of a circus showing in Sweden was forced to accept cash instead of money in return for entrance tickets. At one village, where he had put up his tents, he learned that there was a shortage of ready money. He decided to allow the audience to pay in kind, and the box-office accepted cash for tickets. The only difficulty arose when one of the audience arrived with a seal and asked for change. The manager sold his "takings" to a wholesale market.

The number of boys graded in Canada during the 50 weeks of 1934 ended December 13, was 2,870,041, compared with 3,049,526 during the corresponding period of 1933.

The recent British Trans-Greenland expedition travelled 1,500 miles by dog sled, 700 of it over Greenland territory never before traversed by man.

There are upward of 100 different commercial explosives in common use.

Every person in Stockholm, Sweden, spent an average of $10 for movie tickets in the last year.

AT 62—IN BED WITH RHEUMATISM

At 65—Working Again

Why worry about rheumatism? This old fellow had it almost as bad as it could be. But he just found the right remedy, stuck to it, and now he's working again—at 65 years of age.

Let him tell you all about it. "For two years and a half," he writes, "I have suffered from rheumatism. For eighteen months I could not turn over in bed, nor help myself in any way. My legs and feet were swollen, and I could not sleep or get any rest until I started taking Kruschen Salts. After taking one bottle, I went about on two canes. I kept on taking it, as I found the pains were leaving me. I have taken six bottles, and now I have started work again. I am 65 years of age, and I feel like a man that knows me away. I am a wonder to get on, after what I was."—J. B.

Do you realize that causes rheumatism? Nothing, but sharp-edged uric acid crystals which form as the result of sluggish eliminating organs. Kruschen Salts can always be counted upon to clear those painful crystals from the system.

THE TENDERFOOT

By

GEORGE B. RODNEY

Author of "The Coronado Trail," "The Canyon Trail," Etc.

CHAPTER VII.—Continued

"Aye, I struck a regular Easter gremlin. The whole damned ranch was layin' for me! I reckon this time that man Dustin isn't under any false impressions where we stand. Who's this?"

The slatted door to the barroom was nearly torn from its hinges as Hoskins, the telegraph operator, flung into the bar.

"I'm lookin' for one Duro Stone," he shouted. "Oh! Here you are! I got an answer to your telegram, Stone. That wire you sent to Gerald Keene, I'll send a copy to you later. This man Keene wired a answer. He says: he'll be with you the tenth of next month."

"Fine!" Stone elbowed a man aside and headed for the street and the crowd crouched back from him. The man who could best Sam Dustin, Corse and the pay roll of the Broken Spur was not to be held lightly. With Dustin and Corse his avowed enemies, he was a marked man in Seco. With Frank Crews at his side he snatched his pony from the tie-rack, they swung into saddle and headed down the street.

Once on the open trail, Crews demanded and got an explanation. As Stone told him the details the old manager's face stiffened and grew serious.

"There a lot behind this that we don't abate," he said. "I'm glad this man Keene is coming."

"Neither of them knew that that message flung abroad in the bar of the Silver Dollar set fire to Dustin. The moment he realized what Hoskins had said he whirled Corse aside and started for the door."

"We'll get back to the Broken Spur as quick as we can," he said. "I've got business to attend to."

He had.

CHAPTER VIII.

The word of that telegram galvanized Sam Dustin into instant life. Once back at the ranch-house at the Broken Spur he hustled Spike Goddard into the office for conference.

"We've got to change our plans a bit," he said. "While I was in the Silver Dollar that man Stone from the Hour-glass came in with Crews, their foreman. Corse was with me."

"Corse? That damned fool..." Spike burst into a great laugh. "Do you know what happened to Corse and Gray? A whole lot more than you know of must have taken place. Old man Kane saw the two, Gray and Corse at work on Red Water. Well, the other day..." And Spike proceeded to give a garbled account that he had got from the negro driver on the wagon. He had not seen a great deal but he had seen the two men lashing each other with the mesquite sticks and the sight set him talking.

"...after he came back to the Broken Spur. Dustin stopped him with a pale face. 'It was bad enough havin' old man Kane see what Gray and Corse were doin', he said. 'Now you tell me that this man Stone from the Hour-glass saw it too.'"

"That was some time after Kane saw 'em," said Spike as though that made a difference.

"You damned fool! You know Gray and Corse have got orders to keep as far away from the ranch as they can and to gather in all the cattle they could find. You know we gave them the wagon so they could keep far out and not implicate us. Looks to me like you've lost your mind, Spike. Hell bells, man!"

"You didn't hear me right," said Spike. "Listen to the..." And between gasps of laughter, Spike told Dustin anew what had taken place that day on the open range. To his astonishment Dustin did not laugh.

"Don't you think it's funny?" demanded Spike.

"It's almost as funny as an earache. You poor fool! Can't I make it clear to you? Don't you see that Stone knows now as much about the crooked work on the cattle as Kane did? Do you happen to know what happens to men caught with the goods for ruttin'?" Good God! Can't you see a thing like this? If Carr doesn't want Stone, his hired man, and old Dad Kane knows, he can haul us all into court. If he does that, their evidence will..." He shivered a little at thought of what the evidence could do. "You'll look good tanglin' at the loose end of a rope."

"At last Spike Goddard 'saw.' He stood wordless, licking his lips as he always did when perplexed.

"Well..." he said finally. "I expect maybe you're right. Mostly you are. What'll we do then...?" "We'll have to fire Corse and Gray and let 'em move right on, and that'll take some time. They've got to see that if they talk we'll tell all we know. For the rest... we'll do exactly what I planned. We'll have old Dad Kane show us that location and then he'll have to disappear."

For just a moment, even while he talked, Sam Dustin knew cold fear. Every dollar that he owned in the world was invested in his fortunes at the Broken Spur. Common sense told him to sell what he owned at any price and leave at once if he wished to save his skin. He dared not face a hazard of new fortunes with empty hands. A week ago all looked well. They were gathering in cattle from every little crooked canon too distant for the few men of the Hour-glass to range at will. His future held a very different outlook. No... This damned man Stone's appearance had put a spoke in his wheel. Spike must have sensed his thoughts.

"How about this man Stone?" he demanded.

"Leave Corse and Gray to tend to him," said Dustin grimly. "Our big game is what Kane drank. Once we get that, we own the Hour-glass. Once we own the Hour-glass..." He licked his lips at the thought of how easily Edith would come to him to save her father. "Listen, Spike..."

"To-night Hoskins, the telegraph man, came in to the Silver Dollar. You know Gerald Keene owns half the Hour-glass. He's comin' here. Hoskins ran into the Silver Dollar and told Stone that he had a wire from Gerald Keene. He'll be down here on the tenth..." That gives us just seventeen days..."

"To do what?"

"Good God! Haven't I been telling you? Joe Carr owns half the Hour-glass. This man Gerald Keene owns the other half. If Keene dies, old Carr owns the whole ranch. I've got notes from Carr... I bought them from men he borrowed money from in Seco and he gave his share of the Hour-glass as security. Don't you see now? If Gerald Keene dies, old Carr passes on the whole ranch, pay for his notes..." See now?"

"I... I'm beginnin' to," said Spike dazedly. "We'd get the whole of the Hour-glass and the gold-mine that old man Kane found..."

"And I'll get Edith," said Dustin quietly. "I'll get Edith. She'll be damned glad to marry me to keep her old man out of the poor-house, see?"

"By God," said Spike admiringly. "If I didn't know you so well, Sam, I'd say you was crooked!" Then he snickered. If there was one thing of which Spike Goddard was sure, it was that no power under Heaven could induce pretty Edith Carr to have any dealings with his partner. But it was hard to keep from laughing at thought of it. Sam was so damned sure of himself where women were concerned.

"I bet you two drinks she turns you down on any account," he said. "Shucks, man! What do you want to buy a roan heifer like her for?"

"You fool," said Dustin. "Haven't you ever broken a horse that fought you? It didn't make any special difference about that horse. There was fifty better in the remuda but you wanted to break that one because it fought you. You fool! You want your mind you'd break that horse to hand or bust. Know that feelin'?"

Spike nodded soberly. He knew exactly that feeling. Dustin went on. "You see, Sam, I want to tell you, he said. 'I need him in this'."

In ten minutes Peyott Gregg shambled into the room. Peyott was a fixture at the Broken Spur just as a bear would be a fixture at the Court of Charles of Burgundy or a fool at Feudal boards. He was a huge bulk of a man, making up in thence what he lacked in brains. His low brows, his deep-set eyes that alternately gleamed and glowed cavernously, his loose-lipped mouth, all told a story that is not rare enough in the West. The man was a victim of that dread drug that has pulled down so many men... Peyott! He was as strong as steel yet slackness was apparent, too. It was written all over him. Dustin's great hand snatched at him and almost hurled him into a corner.

"You've been smokin' that damned dope again," he said fiercely. "I've told you a dozen times to lay off it unless you get it from me. I swear to God, Peyott, some day I'll kill you if you don't obey my orders."

"I been mindin' 'em for five years now," croaked Peyott. "What you want, Mist' Dustin?"

"You get packs made up for the mornin'," said Dustin. "I'm goin' into the hills for a few days and you're to go along. Just you and me and old man Kane. Get two pack-ponies, too... No. Better use old man Kane's burros. They're pretty slow but they pack better and they know the trail, too. Use the pack-burros. Understand?"

Peyott nodded wordlessly and disappeared, and Dustin stared after him as he slunk out of the room. There is no other word to adequately express it: he simply faded away as a coyote merges into the shadows of the desert.

For more than five years Peyott had been a fixture at the Broken Spur. Where he originally came from no one knew or cared. The bunk-house accepted him as it accepted lice or sand-burrs in their blankets; as something to get rid of as soon as possible. Whatever he had ever had of brains had long ago been sapped by the use of that fatal drug that he had smoked for years, even before he came to Seco. From time to time Dustin gave him a few cigarettes from a sardonic wish to see how like a man can be to a beast...

"And he saw!" All that Peyott knew was that he liked the stuff... The drug that the wise old Spanish conquistadores forbade to their Indian slaves because, under its influence, they would neither work nor toil. After years of its use there remained to Peyott the gift of speech that alone, with laughter, separates man from beast. Peyott had not laughed for many years and he spoke but seldom. When that stuff was obtainable he was useless.

Dustin watched him shamble from the room and sat back frowning. He had spent hours over the plan that he had formulated and he did not propose now to take any chances with it. To insure it, he hunted up old Dad Kane in the bunk-house and told him to be ready to start at day-break. His argument, quieted him. "You simply got to have this claim staked out so we can register it all right," he said. "You're right about the mini' law. The first man on a lode can follow it. Once you're on the vein even old Joe Carr can't stop you."

Spike Goddard was on hand on the porch at the first light to see them off. Even Dustin, rarely given to laughing, grinned a little as his partner heaved an old boot after them. The uprushing sun found them at the Willow Water crossing and noon caught them at the edge of the long mesa where the true foot-hills begin. Old Kane, in the lead, was dour and silent, urging on his packed burro that kept them at a slow walk most of the day. He rode wordlessly and paid no attention to Dustin. Peyott, busy too with the burros, paid no attention to Dustin had time for his own thoughts.

Those thoughts were not pleasant. Dustin was a curious character. Under kinder stars he might have developed into a really fine man but Fate, that plays her hand with a hidden grin on her mouth, had dealt Sam Dustin a hand that he had to play. Undoubtedly the old Greek tragedians were right when they wrote that a man may not escape his fate. It is written and having been written no man may erase or alter it. Sam Dustin, endowed by Nature with the physical parts of a man, was handicapped by having been denied their proper use.

In spite of the casual way he told his plan to Spike Goddard, his mind was in a whirl as he rode across the sandy foot-hills below the Red Water canon. To remark casually that a man must be removed is one thing; to effect that removal is another. From time to time his eyes strayed to Peyott for, after all, Peyott was the key to his plan.

Made Himself Popular

Man Pleased Children By Building Modern Doll-House

Simon S. Rabinovitz was about the most popular man with the children in Roxbury, Mass., after he had built a 12-foot doll house for his granddaughter, Dorothy Hyde, 10.

Rabinovitz built the house in six months out of 120 sugar boxes and set himself that was about his cellar. It is complete with electric lights, hardwood floors, a bed for Dorothy's baby dolls, a roll-top bed, toy telephone, broom, rocking chair, waste basket and a china closet with toy dishes. The house was built at a cost of $40.

Struck It Rich

Mrs. Charles Palm, a widow with nine children, "struck it rich" on her dry-land farm near Saco, Montana. Gold-seekers seeking sand and gravel to be used in the construction of the gigantic Fort Peck dam, found 1,000,000 cubic yards of it on the Palm homestead, the only available source of supply. Gravel contracts will bring her $100,000 during the next five years.

Your Refrigerator Needs Help

Even in refrigerators foods often lose their original flavor, moisture, or crispness. Complete protection of both flavor and freshness is easily secured by wrapping food in Para-San waxed paper. Just tear off what you need against the sharp edge of the box.

For less cramping uses "Centre Pull" Waxed Paper in envelopes is very popular.

Both kinds are sold by grocers, druggists and stationers.

This Canada Of Ours

Importance Of Dominion Out Of All Proportion To Its Numerical Strength

The men who pioneered this country, who laid the foundation stones for the great Canada of to-day, faced what often seemed to be insuperable difficulties. But they fought through, with the courage traditional in their several races, and they won, leaving for us, eventually, a well-planned nation capable of occupying one of the chief places among the countries of the world.

To-day we are still unimportant from a population standpoint, but the richness and variety of our resources, coupled with the vigor, the courage, the determination, the bravery of our people have lifted us to a position out of all proportion to our numerical strength.

The world has taken notice of Canada in the last two decades and we predict that the world's interest in our country will grow rapidly in the next few years as appreciation of our achievements and our natural resources becomes more general. Border Cities Star.

Little Helps For This Week

"Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve." Matthew 4:10.

The comfort of a mind at rest From every care Thou hast not blest; A heart from all the world set free, To worship and to wait on Thee.

Resign every forbidden joy; restrain every wish that is not referred to His will; banish all eager desires that anxiety. Dwell only the will of God, seek Him alone, and thou shalt find peace.

I have been a great deal happier since I have given up thinking of what's easy and pleasant, and being discontented because I cannot have my own will. Our life is determined for us, and it makes the mind very free when we give up wishing, and on't think of bearing what is laid upon us, and doing what is given us to do.—George Eliot.

New Revelation In Science

Microbes Carried Across Atlantic By Winds Of The Upper Air

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is revealed recently as a new pioneer in science—the first man to gather proof that microscopic bacteria, fungus spores and pollens, including some diseases, are carried all the way across the north Atlantic by winds of the upper air.

The flyer collected these tiny forms of life at many points high over northern waters during the flight he and Mrs. Lindbergh made across the north Atlantic in the summer of 1933.

The discovery by Col. Lindbergh is believed by scientists to be of great importance in showing how both disease organisms and others that are beneficial can be transported all over long distances by air currents high above the ground barriers.

Among the organisms Col. Lindbergh collected were: Several kinds of fungi which cause rust and smut diseases of crops; others that cause early blight of potatoes and apple scab and other blights that attack crops, and several that cause decay of wood. Many others were found that have not yet been identified.

Longest Straight Railroad

On the great flat plain of Nullabor, in Western and South Australia, about 100 miles inland from the southern coast, lies the longest straight railroad in the world. This line connecting the east and the west of the continent, runs 300 miles through grazing lands without a single curve. From Kalgoorlie to Port Augusta it stretches more than 1,000 miles without crossing a river.

CURLERS CLASSIFIED

To the uninitiated, curling looks like rather a silly game, and to the one looking at the various rinks in action for the first time, particularly during bonspiel week with its continual hurry and scurry, it is rather a muddle to a sightseer. These greenhorns try to understand the explanations as to the scoring, but usually this is a little deep for them, so to show some essence of intelligence they begin to ask questions: What does the lead do? Is he the head man? What do the second and third do? Who is the skip, and what is he here for? Here, therefore, is a list of duties of the respective members of a curling rink:

The Lead—This is a very lowly person, who throws the first pair of rocks. He is supposed to thank the Deity once a day in his prayers for being permitted to exist, let alone being allowed to curl. All curlers have served this period of apprenticeship, and it is a remarkable fact that 90 per cent of them have never served long enough.

He always addresses the skip as "Sir" and the third man as "Mr." The lead is supposed to see that the four pairs of rocks belonging to his rink are on the ice and clean five minutes before the game starts. He must do no less than 70 per cent of the sweeping. He is expected to keep the skip well supplied with cigarettes, and to purchase at least one bottle of Scotch essence per diem. This is to be consumed by the rest of the rink on that day. He is not even over the hog line, except when he is sweeping. He is not expected to have any use for alibis. His curling must be perfect or he is blamed for the loss of the game in which his rink suffers defeat. He may tell the second man his private opinion of the skip, but no one else. After many years, he becomes a skip, if in the meantime he manages to survive the sarcasm of his superiors.

Second Man—This person is but one degree removed from the lead. He is expected to do 10 per cent of the sweeping. He is also expected to keep the skip supplied with matches and the third man with cigarettes. He must on all occasions risk the rock he was to knock out or else he is blamed for the loss of all games. His chief duty is to see that the lead does not forget to purchase the spirits for the day and in case of emergencies he is to assist the lead in financing the purchase of this article. He is the one who is allowed to call down the lead, the third and the skip, considering it beneath their dignity to address either of them in conversation except in cases of apparent oversight to ask "where's the bottle?"

The Third—This gentleman is in a class by himself. He could skip the rink—in fact he always could skip it far better than the skip doing the job now. He assumes an air of authority over all the leads and seconds, and of mere condescension to his skip. He does the remaining ten per cent of the sweeping. He holds the broom for the skip to shoot at, and invariably tells the skip he should have tried the shot he, the third man, had chosen, and not the one he, the skip, had missed. He is the person who uses the chalk, putting up all points made by his rink (if any). He gives the skip the occasional cigarette, lends him a match and gives him a lot of unsolicited advice and generally embarrasses and befuddles the skip as much as possible, so when the game is lost, he can say with apparent justification that he should be skipping. This is the highest compliment that you can pay a third man, that he should be skip. They admit it always, but they labor on with an air of martyrdom in the good cause. His principal qualification is in being able to suggest what brand the lead should purchase for the day's consumption. He is expected to be very choosy and see that nothing but the best grades are procured. He on an odd occasion can offer a few faint words of praise if the skip by superhuman effort has pulled the end out of a mess. He never no never admits that his rocks have ever been mislaid by himself. His wife has always been perfect. If there has been lapse, it is the fault of the sweepers or gross misjudgment on the part of the skip.

Th Skip—He is the gentleman sportsman, who gets up the rink, often sacrificing valuable time in the interests and entertainment of the three other curlers who wish to play in the bonspiel. He merely holds the broom and his own temper, while the rest of the rink miss the one and strain the other. He is supposed to be experienced and make all decisions. He must keep a stiff upper lip and not blush when he overhears the rest of the rink giving his character reading to the various onlookers. If in the case of a pure accident the rest have fallen down badly, he must assume a cheerful attitude and endeavor to rake the game out from under sad defeat. He is never known to do right or pick the right shot. His chief delight and happiest expectation is to have the privilege of putting on guards with both his rocks. This privilege is always denied him. He has to knock out shots when he can only see an eyebrow. He must draw to the button making it by eighths of inches. He must play one runner shot and draw the next. He must take 4 rocks with one shot and then lay on the button and make himself generally useful, always knowing that if he wins his rink gets the credit. If he loses, he alone bears the blame. He must have the patience of Job and the aggressiveness of Napoleon, but he must never complain or he will be classed as a poor sport. Life with him is just one crisis after another. He generally finds himself without a friend in the world after the bonspiel is over. Your sympathy is asked on behalf of the poor old skipper.

Comparison

Over in France, the British troops were anxious to secure some German prisoner who could be persuaded to give information as to the strength of the German lines. They were successful in taking a German field officer, and McTavish was detailed to escort the prisoner to headquarters for examination. At last McTavish arrived. "Where is your prisoner?" he was asked. "I ha'ena got yon prisoner." "But why? Did he escape?" "No he didna rightly escape. It was this way. We were coming along and started a few words. FORD V-8 FOR 1935

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 is the biggest and roomiest Ford car ever built. It is a strikingly handsome car, with modern lines and new, luxurious appointments.

But most important of all it is especially designed to give you smooth, easy riding over all kinds of roads—"a front-seat ride for back-seat riders."

This ease of riding is achieved by the use of three basic principles never before combined in a low-price car.

1. Correct distribution of car weight by moving engine and body forward eight and a half inches.
2. New location of seats by which the rear seat is moved forward, toward the centre of the car away from the rear axle and away from the bumps.
3. New spring suspension which permits the use of longer, more flexible springs and increases the springbase to 123 inches.

A New Ford V-8 That Brings New Beauty, New Safety, and a New Kind of Riding Comfort Within Reach of Millions of People

The result is Centre-Poise—which not only gives you a new riding comfort but adds to the stability of the car and its ease of handling. You can take curves from seven to eight miles faster with perfect safety.

There are many new features in the Ford V-8 for 1935 which make the car still easier to drive. New brakes give more power for stopping quickly with far less foot pressure on the pedal. A new type of easy-pressure clutch employs centrifugal force to increase efficiency at higher speeds. New steering mechanism makes the car still easier to handle.

The New Ford V-8 for 1935 retains the V-8 engine which has demonstrated its dependability and economy in the service of over a million owners. There are refinements, but no change in basic design. You buy premium performance when you buy this Ford V-8—full 90 horsepower and 85 miles an hour.

We invite you to see this New Ford V-8 at the showrooms of Ford dealers. You will want to ride in it—to drive it yourself. You will find it a new experience in motoring.

ESPIONAGE IS CHARGE MADE BY THE SOVIET PRESS

London.—A Warsaw despatch to The Express said that a secret trial of Leonid Nicolaieff and 13 others accused of the murder of Sergei Kiroff began in the military court at the old Smolney Institute in Leningrad, scene of the crime.

All reporters were barred from the court room but the despatch gave a purported description of the opening of proceedings in which Nicolaieff was described as defiant, smiling or laughing.

He was quoted as saying: "I freed Russia from a low down scoundrel. Others will follow me and finish my work."

The Moscow radio station, it was said, announced correspondence from Leon Trotsky was found giving evidence of the existence of an organization in Bulgaria, Lithuania and Germany, plotting against the Soviets.

Moscow.—Espionage against the Soviet regime was charged in the Soviet press as a consequence of the linking of the activities of an underground terrorist organization and an unidentified foreign consul.

Bitter comment met publication of the alleged confession of Leonid Nicolaieff, accused assassin of Sergei Kiroff, in which he told of his negotiations with the alien official.

The government charged the assassination of Kiroff was, but the opening move in a sinister plot against other high Soviet officials, including Josef Stalin.

The plot, it said, was organized with the aid of Leon Trotsky, exiled former Communist leader, and was to have been followed by "the intervention of capitalistic powers."

Political Publicity

Want Equal Newspaper Space For All Parties in Alberta

Calgary.—Equal newspaper space for political parties in Alberta placing their platforms before the public at election time would be provided, through a tax on daily publications, if a resolution to come before the annual convention of the United Farmers of Alberta here is endorsed and adopted by the government. It reads:

"Resolved, the Alberta government tax daily newspapers a sum to be expended in buying back space in the papers at advertising rates, the space to be divided equally among the various political parties to publish their own news and propaganda."

Should Join World Court

U.S. Attorney General Urges Nation To Fall Into Step

Washington.—Attorney General Cummings lent his support to the American Bar Association's long-standing contention that the United States should join the world court.

In the foreword to a pamphlet published by the bar association, the attorney-general said:

"I am confident that at some future time—when, I know not—the United States will fall into step with 60 other nations on this subject; we cannot permanently remain out of line. When such action is taken, I hope the lawyers of this country will receive for it the credit which they deserve."

Imperial Veterans

British Government Commission To Investigate Condition Of Soldiers

Calgary.—Appointment of a commission by the British government to investigate the condition of former imperial soldiers throughout the dominions and colonies of the empire will be requested as the result of the recent convention of the British Empire Service League at Melbourne, Australia, Brigadier-General Alex Ross, C.M.G., D.S.O., president of the Canadian Legion, announced here recently.

General Ross passed through Calgary on his way back from Australia to his home at Yorkton, Sask.

Monoxide Gas Poisoning

Toronto.—Dr. John Huff, formerly connected with the Saskatchewan department of education, was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes in a garage at the rear of an apartment house where he lives. He was taken to hospital. Dr. Huff was believed to have been fixing his car, with the engine running. The garage doors were closed.

Veteran Of Arctic

Capt. Bernier, Northern Explorer, Dies At His Home In Quebec

Quebec.—A veteran of northern exploration, Captain J. E. Bernier, who would have been 83 on Jan. 1, died at his home here, following a paralytic stroke suffered 10 days ago.

With the death of Captain Bernier is closed a life which was full of hardly exploits and adventure. The captain's name will always be linked with the discovery of many Arctic areas of which he took possession in the name of Canada. Among these are Lincoln Land, Ellesmere Island, Melville Island, Prince Wales Island, North Somerset Island and Bellot Island.

It was in 1908 that the veteran French-Canadian navigator set the Canadian flag on Cone Island, where he found the lost records of Admiral Peary.

The son of a mariner, Captain Bernier went to sea at an early age, getting his first command of a vessel, when only 17 years old. For a quarter of a century he steered his course in the Arctic seas and was the best known white man of the frozen north, where he was popularly known as "The Bear."

In addition to his exploration, which he considered his life work, Captain Bernier found time to travel in many other parts of the world and crossed the Atlantic ocean 269 times.

To people who would remonstrate with him for the risks they believed he took on his voyages of exploration, the skipper would always reply: "Never fear. My grandfather and father died in their beds and I will certainly not break the tradition."

His prediction came true for he died at his home in Quebec, after a long illness, which he attributed to his afflictions with his quarters on the Arctic, the ship in which most of his northern travels were accomplished.

Captain Bernier had beside him at his deathbed his wife, formerly Miss Alma Lemieux; his brother, Alfred Bernier; his sister, Mrs. Joseph Bole, Quincy, Mass., and his physician, Dr. J. Leblond.

Plot Against Stalin

Capitalistic Powers Are Blamed For Move To Overthrow Bolshevik Leaders

Moscow.—An alleged plot against the life of Joseph Stalin and the intervention of "capitalistic powers" to overthrow Bolshevik leadership of Soviet Russia was disclosed in a communique narrating the testimony of the assassin Leonid Nicolaieff and 13 of his associates.

Nicolaieff's confession, as given out by the Soviet authorities, linked Leon Trotsky, exiled Bolshevik leader, now believed in France, with an "underground terrorist group" to which the slayer of Sergei Kiroff belonged.

It said Nicolaieff confessed he fired the fatal bullet into Sergei Kiroff at Leningrad, Dec. 1, with the full expectation an attack would be made on Stalin by another section of the group, and that widespread subversive activity against Soviet authorities would follow.

The "capitalistic powers" were not identified, but Nicolaieff was purported to have admitted making many visits to an unnamed foreign consul in Leningrad, from whom he received 5,000 roubles for his work against the government leaders. (A rouble nominally is worth 50 cents).

Saar Frontier Closed

To Exclude Troublemakers Until After The Election

Saarbruecken, Saar Basin Territory.—The Saar frontier was closed at midnight until after the plebiscite as the plebiscite commission moved dramatically to exclude possible troublemakers from the territory.

The commission's orders provided that the border stay closed until Jan. 26 to all except persons able to prove they have urgent business in the Saar, or are merely travelling through the territory. Simultaneously with the closing of the border at midnight and the end of the Christmas truce that kept the basin quiet over the holiday, Nazis and anti-Nazis planned to reopen their propaganda campaigns, the former urging the basin's return to Germany, the latter, union with France or retention of League of Nations control.

Will Give Evidence

New York.—Betty Gow, the nurse who put baby Charles Lindbergh in his crib a few hours before he was taken to his death by a kidnapper, arrived on the liner Aquitania to testify at the forthcoming trial of Bruno Hauptmann, the baby's alleged slayer.

Open Switch Causes Wreck

Express Crashes Into Special At Dundas, Ontario

Hamilton, Ont.—Identification of the bodies of four women reduced to one the number of unidentified victims of a Christmas night train wreck at Dundas, near here, that took 15 lives and brought injury to 31 persons.

The express struck an open switch, according to preliminary investigation. The special train, en route from London, Ont., to Toronto, was crowded with people who had been celebrating the Christmas festival.

The rear coach of the special, broken and twisted, was thrown up on top of the locomotive of the express and the cries of the injured could be heard in the wreck of Dundas below as the fast Detroit-Toronto train smashed into the wooden cars of the special.

No official statement could be obtained as to responsibility for the wreck. It was evident the switch had not been set for the express.

Chinese Spies Caught Near Siberian Border

Claim They Were Acting Under Jap Military Orders

Moscow.—Two Chinese spies, who claimed they were acting under Jap military orders, were under arrest at Turung, Siberia.

One was the commander of a detachment of the 15th regiment of the third Manchoukuo infantry brigade. The other was a civilian from the village of Orenpat, on the Manchoukuo frontier, said the investigating authorities.

The arrests were made Dec. 22, but not announced until after the prisoners had made declarations they were under instructions of the Japanese military forces in the region.

FRANCE DELAYS ANNOUNCEMENT OF NAVAL POLICY

Paris.—Two French cabinet ministers have agreed to postpone public announcement of France's "hands free" naval limitation policy.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval and Naval Minister Francois Pietri made the postponement a sort of Christmas present to the naval world, hoping France's temporary silence would contribute to a better international atmosphere.

The attitude they intend eventually to announce is one of opposition to the present system of naval parity under the Washington and London treaties. They claim it has been France's greatest source of irritation in her relations with Italy.

They seek a treaty based upon actual defensive needs of each country. They also would have a clause by which naval programs would be announced a year in advance. Pietri has been in favor of straightforward denunciation of existing treaties to satisfy the French parliament and the people, but Laval vetoed that.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKET STAR CONVALESCING

The mystery of the whereabouts in England of Don Bradman, famous Australian cricketer, since he left a London nursing home after his serious illness, has been solved. The world-famous sportsman was photographed above, with his wife, in the garden at Budeigh Salterton, where they are the guests of Mr. H. L. Sykes.

NEW ORGANIZER

J. Earl Lawson, M.P., who has been appointed to the post of Conservative organizer for the Dominion. The appointment is effective with the New Year.

Assistant Governor Of Bank

Montreal Gazette Says French-Canadian To Have Post

Montreal.—The Gazette stated information from Ottawa is to the effect that J. Hector Bender is to be named assistant governor of the Bank of Canada. "The appointment will be made early in the new year, probably at the first meeting of the cabinet."

The Gazette adds: "Nomination of Mr. Bender will bring to fruition a strongly-felt and expressed wish of the French language press of Quebec province, and of French-Canadian in general, that one of the three senior posts of Canada's national financial organization should go to a French-Canadian."

Other senior officials are Graham Towers, governor, and J. A. C. Osborne, deputy governor.

New Railway Equipment

Plan By Which Railways May Be Assisted In Financing

Ottawa.—A plan by which the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways would be assisted in financing an equipment order of upwards of $30,000,000 is known to be under consideration by the Dominion government, and a decision is expected momentarily. It would be undertaken, so far as the federal authorities are concerned, because of the great impetus it would give re-employment in several eastern districts where manufacturing plants are located.

Both railways are understood to be in need of new rolling stock, passenger and freight, because of the economy efforts in operation for nearly five years.

Lightning Struck Plane

Rutbah, Wells, Syria.—The big Douglas air transport "Univer" found wrecked and burned near here, was undoubtedly struck by lightning, the commission sent by the Royal Dutch Air line to investigate the disaster telegraphed the company's office at The Hague.

Health Insurance Plan

Will Test Out Scheme In A Rural Municipality In Manitoba

Winnipeg.—Selecting the municipality of Woodworth with its 2,000 population as its laboratory, the Manitoba department of health contemplates a two-year practical test of a health insurance scheme.

Stated to start in the spring if the municipal council votes its approval, the plan provides:

- 1.—Complete medical service, including surgery, hospitalization and cost of prescriptions.
- 2.—Payment of doctors' fees and hospital charges through taxation on property and a poll tax.
- 3.—Right of the individual, within reasonable limits, to choose his own physician or surgeon and select the hospital to which he desires to go for treatment.
- 4.—Maintenance of competition between doctors, continuance of the high standard of medical care and protection against racketeering by doctors.

"There will be nothing compulsory about the scheme," said Dr. F. W. Jackson, deputy minister of health, who framed the plan after many years' study and actual experience as a country doctor. Administration was the key to the scheme's success, he said.

The scheme would be administered by a medical advisory board of three doctors, named by the municipality, the department of health and the medical association. The board would pass on all accounts and it would be the guard against racketeering. No doctor could make two visits to a patient in one day and be paid for both visits. It proved the patient was in critical condition and the visits essential.

Cross Antarctic In 'Plane

Explorer And Pilot With Byrd Expedition Made Flight

Wellington, N.Z.—Lincoln Ellsworth, Antarctic explorer, and his pilot, Bert Balchen, were reported to have made a successful aeroplane flight across the Antarctic from Deception Island to the Bay of Whales.

Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his Antarctic expedition are now encamped at Little America, Antarctica, which is the icy "shore" of the Bay of Whales.

The Ellsworth-Balchen flight apparently was 2,400 miles, for Deception Island is one of the South Shetland Islands, lying approximately between Cape Horn and the south pole.

REVIEW OF WHEAT SITUATION OVER THE PAST YEAR

Winnipeg.—Still pondering prospects of new regulatory measures in 1935, traders on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange saw one of the most hectic years in the history of the exchange slipping into history. And 1935 promised to be just as hectic.

The outlook for 1935 included: Retirement of John I. McFarland as the federal government's agent in stabilization efforts, hinted by Mr. McFarland himself.

Reduction of the Canadian wheat carryover to below 100,000,000 bushels and consequent end of stabilization efforts, which Mr. McFarland said, would mean his services were no longer required.

Definite decision on recommendations for investigation of wheat futures operations on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange sought as result of charges foreign interests were attempting to depress prices.

Further international effort to obtain wheat export quotas or limitation of production, left high and dry at the year ended through Argentina's refusal to participate in agreements as drawn up.

Records of the past year disclosed: A short crop, due to drought, grasshoppers and other pests and soil infesting, followed by a wet harvest and early frosts damaging about 50,000,000 bushels of grain.

Increased demand for low grade grain in the United States for feed for livestock, boosting the price and narrowing the spread between No. 1 Northern and the lower grades.

Entry of the United States into the importing field, buying from Canada a quantity of hard red spring wheat and amber durum for bread and macaroni making as well as lower grades for feed.

Pegging, for the second time, in the exchange's history, of wheat prices. First pegged for four weeks in 1933, prices were again pegged Nov. 1 and Nov. 10 this year and were still in effect as the year ended.

RAILWAYS MAY ABANDON SOME BRANCH LINES

Ottawa.—Indications of a general move on foot to abandon what may be considered unprofitable branch lines on the part of both the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, has become apparent. Each system has just filed applications with the board of railway commissioners for permission to discontinue a number of branch line services in the eastern, central and western parts of Canada.

On the Canadian Pacific list of proposed abandonments are: Bonny River Shore line, N.B.; Orford subdivision, United States boundary to Eastman, Que.; Lardeau subdivision, Lardeau, B.C.; to Gerard, B.C., and North Fork subdivision, West End to Archibald, B.C.

On the Canadian National list are: Havlock to Elgin, N.B.; Aston subdivision, Victoriaville to Ste. Gedeon, Que.; Freiburg subdivision, Que., and Port Perry subdivision, Whitby to Cresswell, Ont.

If any protests are received by any of the municipalities affected by the proposed abandonments, the board will set a date for hearing the applications of railways.

Missionaries Elude Bandits

Harrowing Story Of Escape Of Two American Women

Changteh, China.—A harrowing story of how they escaped capture by outlaw troops while fleeing from a remote missionary station in western Hunan province was told by two American women upon their arrival here.

The women are Miss Justine F. Grammer of Hubbard, Ia., and Miss Anna M. Renninger of Reading, Pa. They were stationed at Chanki, Hunan, and attempted to reach Changteh by a small boat ahead of a fast moving brigand army.

They were overtaken at Tao Yuan, 20 miles north of here. Their craft, piloted by Chinese oarsmen, immediately was commandeered by the rebels but the women managed to elude discovery by crouching in the bottom of the boat.

For six days they remained in that position, not daring to show their heads. During this time the outlaws plundered and ravaged the adjacent city. Twice their boat was used for a pontoon bridge and the women heard the bandit army clattering overhead. Finally the boat was permitted to proceed and they arrived here without further incident.

Toronto Bank Is Robbed

Hold-Up Men Loot Branch Of Royal Bank

Toronto.—Herdling the staff and a customer into a rear room two armed men swooped down on the east-end branch of the Royal Bank of Canada at Gerard street and Greenwood avenue and obtained loot valued at $1,500.

They rushed out the door into a waiting automobile where a third man was at the wheel ready for the getaway. The bank staff rushed from their temporary prison, and while one notified police, A. Elliott, a bookkeeper, fired four revolver shots directly into the car but without apparent effect.

Calmly watching the holdup was 11-year-old James Ellis, who had an account of $2 in the bank. He took the number of the bandits' car and gave it to police.

Upturn In Business

Henry Ford Predicts Good Solid Year For Business

Detroit.—Henry and Edsel Ford forecast "a great solid year for business" in 1935, but warned against overdependence upon the "momentum" from the "remarkable improvement" in 1934.

Henry Ford's remarks were confined to the season's greetings and a suggestion that "if you are prosperous, you will make many others prosperous."

Edsel Ford, president of the company, commented upon a "decided upturn in business during the year past" and predicted continued improvement.

He said contracts aggregating $12,000,000 already have been awarded in connection with the company's $20,000,000 expansion program.

Here and There

What a practical newspaperman finds interesting on a cruise around the world in the Canadian Pacific Express of Britain can be counted upon to capture the imagination of stay-at-homes. Last winter Alan Maurice Irwin, a Montreal writer, made the cruise. He saw intriguing places, outstanding people and strange customs. So he sat down and wrote a book which is illustrated by photographs he made with his own camera, titled with an intriguing title upon humanity. Now, under the comprehensive title "—and ships and sailing was," the book is on Macmillan's full list.

Owing to the almost impassable condition of the roads between Blaimore and Bellevue-Hillcrest, the attendance at the Elks' annual New Year frolic was not as large as was expected.
